Collegiate Training Compass: SHAW

What: Each EDGE staff is being coached and developed in their sexual health and wholeness through personal training, EDGE Summits, Biblical studies on sexuality, and intensives. Through these, EDGErs build a Biblical framework for understanding sexuality and to process their personal story.

Why: Each EDGE staff has clarity to know the orthodox Biblical sexual ethic and empowered to live it out. To be a fruitful, long-term disciplemaker, one must both personally walk in sexual integrity and know how to invite others into repentance, freedom, and restoration.

The TMS is required in EDGE training because the pre-selected, pre-printed and topically arranged system has proven to be a helpful way to get started with the discipline. EDGErs can develop the practice themselves and learn a tool for helping students.

Questions for your radar:

- What are they learning about Biblical sexuality? Have they processed or shared this with others? What are they struggling to believe about God's design for sexuality? (Have them share with you).
- Am I actively asking my EDGEr how they are doing in the area of sexual integrity? Or have I connected them with someone who is able to focus on this area of health?
- How is my EDGEr doing in the area of sexual integrity (fantasy, masturbation, pornography, action out with another person)?
- Are they able to articulate what God has done in the past and is doing in the present in the area of sexual health?
- Ask your EDGEr, "Are there certain areas you want me to follow up with on a regular basis or are you meeting with someone in this area?"
- What is their view of the Navigators position of an orthodox Biblical sexual ethic?
- Are they living from a Biblical or cultural narrative of sexuality?
- How do they address SHAW topics with students?
